

NORTHERN KENTUCKY UNIVERSITY DEPARTMENT OF CHEMISTRY

The Northern Kentucky University (NKU) Department of Chemistry invites applications for two tenure-track assistant professor positions beginning August 2018: 1) Analytical chemistry; and 2) Biochemistry. For each position, a Ph.D. in chemistry (or biochemistry) is required and postdoctoral experience is highly preferred. The ideal candidates will have a strong interest in teaching and research involving undergraduates and a desire to belong to a collegial, vibrant department committed to excellence in the classroom, in the research lab and in P-12 outreach. The candidates will be expected to develop a research program suitable for undergraduate participation with a strong likelihood of external funding and can expect start-up research funds. Successful candidates may be eligible to be awarded the Dorothy Westerman Hermann or Ashland Endowed Professorships in Science. Visit <http://chemistry.nku.edu> for more information on the position. Complete applications will be submitted via <https://jobs.nku.edu> and include a CV, statements of teaching interest and research plan, and a list of at least three references (letters will be solicited by NKU following application submission). Review of applications will begin in early October and continue until the position is filled. The NKU Department of Chemistry is committed to increasing the diversity of the campus community and the curriculum. Candidates who can contribute to these goals are encouraged to apply and to identify their strengths and experiences in this area.

NKU, located seven miles from downtown Cincinnati in an area offering an outstanding quality of life, is a nationally recognized metropolitan university committed to active engagement with the Northern Kentucky/Greater Cincinnati region of nearly two million people.
