The Department of Chemistry is seeking to fill a Professional Track Teaching position beginning January 1, 2023 or August 16, 2023.

This Assistant/Associate Teaching Professor position will primarily instruct lecture and laboratory courses as determined by Departmental scheduling.

Teaching responsibilities for this position can include lecture courses at the undergraduate level in General Chemistry and Analytical Chemistry. Teaching responsibilities may also include the coordination of (TA supported) laboratory courses in General Chemistry and Analytical Chemistry.

Rank is commensurate with education & experience.

Course responsibility involves the following:
- Presenting engaging course content that fulfills student learning outcomes
- Developing appropriate assessments (exams, quizzes, homework)
- Grading assessments with TA support
- Holding office hours
- Preparing content for and coordinating TA activities for recitation sections
- Maintaining an up-to-date course platform (e.g. Moodle)
- Creating assignments in learning management systems
- Determining and posting course grades
- Oversight and management of the chemistry demonstration room (supports Departmental instruction)
- Coordinating TA activities and safety oversight in General and Analytical Chemistry laboratory courses

Outside of teaching, the Assistant/Associate Teaching Professor is expected to serve on Departmental committees and serve as an academic advisor to undergraduate Chemistry majors. This position reports to the Department Head.
