Tandon Faculty First Look Fellowship

The NYU Tandon School of Engineering is committed to excellence, inclusion, and diversity in STEM research. In this framework, we invite scholars passionate about science, inclusivity, and driven to make the world a better place to apply for the prestigious Tandon Faculty First Look Fellowship program. The candidates should be nearing completion of their PhD or be in a post-doctoral position.

Fellows will have the opportunity to present and receive feedback on their ongoing research, engage with NYU faculty from a range of engineering disciplines, and participate in workshops designed to help them advance their careers.

The Tandon Faculty First Look Fellowship program will be held in-person on Friday, April 29, 2022, 10:00 AM - 4:30 PM on the campus of NYU Tandon School of Engineering, 6 MetroTech Center, Brooklyn, NY 11201, and all travel expenses will be covered.

Qualifications

Eligible participants include doctoral degree candidates and post-doctoral fellows working in fields represented by NYU Tandon’s faculty, departments, and research centers. Women and applicants of African-American, Latinx, American Indian, or Alaskan Native descent, and people with disabilities are particularly encouraged to apply.

Application Instructions

Interested candidates will submit the following (as individual documents) when the application process is open:

1. Personal Statement: to include career aspirations, your contribution to diversity and inclusion in the Academy, anticipated dissertation completion date, and why participating in NYU Tandon’s Faculty First Look will help you achieve your goals. Maximum 750-word count.

3. Curriculum Vitae.

5. Please use this supplemental form.

Application deadline is March 21, 2022. Please submit materials electronically through Interfolio.
