Assistant Professor of Chemistry
University of Wisconsin Oshkosh

The Department of Chemistry at the University of Wisconsin Oshkosh seeks a tenure track Assistant Professor to be based at our Fond du Lac campus beginning September 1, 2021. A successful candidate will teach undergraduate general chemistry, non-major and pre-nursing chemistry, and associated labs and discussion sections, as well as manage the chemical stockroom and ensure safety. Engaging in professional, scholarly and service activities is expected.

The Fond du Lac campus of the University of Wisconsin Oshkosh offers Chemistry courses at the 100- and 200-level for prospective Chemistry majors and other students. Our students are a mix of traditional and non-traditional age, including many first-generation college students. We are committed to delivering the first two years of a high-quality liberal arts education and a strong foundation for those who wish to pursue professional, occupational and advanced academic degrees, as well as those pursuing an associates degree. The Department of Chemistry includes more than a dozen faculty and academic staff across the three campuses of UW Oshkosh. The Fond du Lac campus is located in the city of Fond du Lac (population circa 41,000).
